

Hip Hop Legend Snoop Dogg Has First Case Delayed

Written by Robert ID3146

Monday, 04 December 2006 05:41 -

Hip hop legend Snoop Dogg aka Calvin Broadus made an appearance in an Orange County court room today for his arraignment on one of his many current criminal cases.

The hip hop rapper was accompanied by his lawyer Mr. Donald Etra and security guards. His arraignment on the felony weapons possession charge was delayed until January 24th.

In this case the hip hop star will remain out of jail on 150 thousand dollar bail.

Snoop's next court appearance will be on December 12th for the Burbank Airport incident.

Snoop Dogg has seen his share of trouble with the law over the years. Snoop was once signed to Marion 'Suge' Knight's Death Row Records and has recently appeared on the new Tupac Shakur (2Pac) album Pac's Life rapping about his 'homie' Pac and has himself just released a new album Blue Carpet Treatment.

Just last week Snoop and Marion Suge Knight exchanged thoughts on each other in print magazines. Seems the 'drama of hip hop' never stops.