

Hip-Hop Icon Ice Cube Hosts 'Niggaz With Gunz

Written by Robert ID2628

Thursday, 18 May 2006 03:35 -

West coast hip-hop & gangsta rap icon and actor Ice Cube continues to push the envelope as the host of “Niggaz With Gunz”, the fourth installment of executive producer Mike Johns’ “Listen N Learn” mixtape series.

The new mixtape pays tribute to controversial Civil Rights leader, who authored the book “Negroes With Guns”, which was published in 1962. Robert Franklin Williams (1925-1996) is best known for his militant leadership of the Civil Rights Movement in the South, where he urged Blacks to arm themselves in the name of self-defense against the Ku Klux Klan. Williams refused to be bound by the doctrine of non-violence and formed a path to end Jim Crow segregation.

“Niggaz With Gunz” is the first mixtape west coast rap icon Ice Cube has ever hosted and features new and exclusive remixed music from his “Laugh Now Cry Later” album, set to be released on June 6, 2006.

The mixtape, which was featured on MTV’s “Mixtape Mondays”, includes remixes of “Why We Thugs”, featuring new hip-hop rap artist Black Rose from Chicago, and “Chrome & Paint”, with rap newcomer LA producer Tommy Gunz.

In addition, the mixtape debuts exclusive, original music made available as ringtones from three unsigned emerging hip-hop artists – Swing from Chicago, Illinois; Spaide R.I.P.P.E.R. from St. Louis, Missouri; Choir Boy of Newark, New Jersey, and motivational speaker Mac McGee from Chicago.

“Niggaz With Gunz” also includes compelling music from late hip-hop icon Tupac (2Pac), hip-hop group Mobb Deep, & Baby Sham’s “Ghetto Stories”, detailing the plague of guns and violence affecting Black communities around the world.

“Today’s generation does not want to be preached to -- hip-hop used correctly is a good method to educate our youth,” says Mike Johns, executive producer. Gun violence is a steady problem in the Black community, and Ice Cube urges listeners to “put the gun away and use your brain”.

Hip-Hop Icon Ice Cube Hosts 'Niggaz With Gunz

Written by Robert ID2628

Thursday, 18 May 2006 03:35 -

In a celebration of Black Music Month in June, UrbanWorld Wireless will be the first to debut the mixtape on its website

www.urbanworldwireless.com

before it ultimately hits the streets on May 22, 2006.

UrbanWorld sees this as an opportunity to help eradicate violence against Blacks, not only in the US, but in Jamaica and beyond.

The company will donate a portion of the ringtone revenue generated from the mixtape to support the Darfur region of Sudan, in Northern Africa, which due to the extensive violence, rape and killings has been named the first genocide of the 21st century.

The "Listen N Learn" mixtape series is centered on educational messages that promote social consciousness and focus on compelling issues within the Black community, including Black-on-Black crime within the US and abroad, including Jamaica and Africa, the impact of Hurricane Katrina, and other thought provoking topics. Created and executive produced by Mike Johns, the series leverages the power and influence of hip-hop music to educate today's youth. The first two volumes of the series were hosted by Talib Kweli and Ray Benzino, respectively, while the third volume, "When Disaster Strikes: Tribute to Hurricane Katrina," was narrated with excerpts from the infamous Malcolm X speech "The Ballot or the Bullet". Look for the "Listen N Learn" mixtape series to continue to push the limits and create meaningful dialogue within the hip-hop community and beyond.

Please visit <http://www.urbanworldwireless.com> for full tracklist and ordering information.

For more on Civil Rights Leader Robert Franklin Williams visit - http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Robert_F._Williams