We spoke to Binky Mack from AllFrumTha I to get his comments on the recent murder of Anthony Watkins aka Fat Tone murdered in Las Vegas. The hip-hop and rap game has escalated to a dangerous point and it is good to hear what the artists involved in the field have to say about what is going on in their industry.

Hear is what Binky Mack had to say "I have a lot of family in Kansas City. A lot of people know I grew up in Inglewood and I am from allfrumtha i/Westside Connection, but I was born in Kansas City and didn't come to Los Angeles until I was in the 4th grade. My cousin Candice came to stay with me for a month in L.A., and she was telling me about all these Kansas City rappers that was comin up. This had to be about 5 years ago or so. I told her that I would love to lend a hand in anything they got crackin out there. You know, I aint the only one from K.C."

"Me and Eddie Griffin was talkin and he told me thats where he is from. DJ Pooh is from Kansas City as well. I remember talking to Vel Bicardi in a studio out here years back when I was trying to get in the game. So we still reppin K.C. I hate to see anyones life takin on the real. Even though I never really heard of Anthony Watkins, it is possible he was one of the rappers Candice was talking about who was blowing up in K.C. We need to put the guns down, continue to pick up the mic, make this money and invest. "
