Mos Def returns to the stage next month for a round of live performances that support his recently released album, "The New Danger."

They don't call him "The Mighty Mos Def" for nothing.

The Brooklyn MC scored his highest-ever chart debut with his second solo album, "The New Danger", selling more than 95,000 copies to open at #5 on next week's Billboard albums chart. Mos' last album, Black on Both Sides, bowed at #25 back in October 1999, selling more than 53,000 copies, according to SoundScan

He is set to resume touring in early December, and dates run for about two weeks. The schedule is shown below. Go see this hip hop legend if you can. Check his web site for more info.
