Miss Info (Minya Oh) will return to the Hip-Hop / Rap & R&B station WQHT (Hot 97)/New York but she won't be rejoining the Miss Jones morning show. Instead she'll host her own weekend show starting April 30. Miss Info will be heard Saturday mornings from 8 to noon. She'll also provide "celebrity drama" reports on the FunkMaster Flex night show during the hours of 7 and 8 p.m. Monday thru Thursday.

"I am looking forward to being back at the No. 1 Hip-Hop and R&B station," Miss Info said.

Info had been MIA since January, when the morning show aired a "Tsunami Song" parody, which resulted in two morning members losing their jobs while everyone except Miss Info was suspended. Miss Info then criticized the airing of the song prompting Miss Jones to tell her, "You think you're superior because you're Asian."

Miss Info's attorney, Ken Thompson, said the situation then led to irreconcilable differences and that his client could no longer work with Miss Jones. All along Miss Info had expressed interest in remaining with station despite the situation and the station was also looking to resolve the issue.

"It's great news," Thompson told the Daily News. "This expands her opportunities to reach her audience. She'll be great."
