Worldwide rights from Death Row Records and legendary hip-hop rap record mogul CEO of Death Row Suge Knight for "Tupac Shakur: Live at the House of Blues," DVD, were obtained by Eagle Rock Entertainment back in June and now the DVD and the CD sound track are available for early order.

Any fan of true art knows that an artist is most alive when he is on stage. Tupac Live At The House of Blues is the final recorded performance of the late hip-hop rap icon Tupac Shakur—eternalized on July 4, 1996 at the House of Blues on the Sunset Strip—and a celebration of his vital musical genius. One of the most respected aspects of Tupac's grand personality was his absolute sincerity, and Tupac Live... stays true to that legacy: it is a completely honest performance sans censors and retakes. Unlike other Tupac Shakur DVDs that center on the tumultuous facets of his biography, Tupac Live is simply the portrait of an artist in his element: the stage. The performance, the energy and the artistry speak for themselves and further present Tupac as one of the most brilliant entertainers in the history of popular music and a master craftsman of the stage. The supplemental features of Tupac Live expand this representation of his talent: a remix music video version of "How Do You Want It" including concert performance at the Palace Theater in Hollywood and a documentary titled "G-Funk—Just The Music, No Drama," about the sonic backdrop that inspired and accompanied many of Tupac Shakur's poetic verses. Tupac Live is a fitting coda to Tupac's legacy of brilliant performance before he moved on to immortality.
