18,500 acre prison work farm known as Angola in Louisiana. His crime and reason for punishment? Trying to better prison living and working conditions, stopping the sex slavery, rape and violence that was rampant in Angola in the 1960s and 1970s through political organizing and racial solidarity and integration...

Bro. Wilkerson's dedicated efforts were paying off. He was drawing major media and political attention to the horrible conditions of Angola. He was gaining support from influential people for his efforts. He was also making powerful enemies.

To slow him and the prison reform movement down, Bro. Wilkerson was framed for the murder of a prison guard. His fellow comrades Bro. Herman Wallace and Bro. Albert Woodfox were also framed for the murder of the same prison guard. Unfortunately, Bros. Wallace & Woodfox were also put into solitary confinement for nearly 36 consecutive years each!!! They recently got out of solitary confinement in March 2008 and are still waiting to be freed.

Bro. Robert King Wilkerson earned his freedom on February 8, 2001. He currently speaks around the world on behalf of his imprisoned comrades as well as other political prisoners of conscience still locked up in the world's biggest prison state, the U.S.A. The U.S.A. possesses 25% of the world's prison population (the most anywhere in the world). Of the 2 million people locked down, half are people of color. The U.S.A. also have 4 million people on probation/parole. 1 out of every 100 Americans are locked down. Sobering numbers...

Bro. Robert King Wilkerson makes a famous candy he created while in prison called "Freelines" (similar to pralines and pronounced the same way). You can order the deliciously sweet candy at his website <http://www.kingsfreelines.com>
